said to be continuing his work with General Joseph Pilsudski on the reconstruction of the Polish Government, and is planning measures against the Bolshevisfs.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Messages received by the Polish bureau here from the Polish National Committee at Paris said that Paderewski was increasingly confident that a new Polish coalition ministry would be formed and the Government placed on a stable basis. Officials of the bureau feel that the attack on Mr. Paderewski will strengthen his influence among the people of Poland and result in redoubled efforts to rid the country of Bolshevism.

The arrival of Paderewski was the signal for the uprising of the Poles against the Germans in Posen. The Polish newspapers welcome Paderewski as the coming president of the Polish republic, but it is difficult to foretell what his chances are before the election of the Polish parliament, which takes places on January 25 everywhere in old Poland, and which will be the first sign.

in old Poland, and which will be the first sign.

"The Germans are so afraid of the elections uniting Poland that they proclaimed that the Polish vote, as well as propaganda, will be considered high treason. I don't believe there will be serious fighting and that the Poles will simply drive away the Germans.

Western and Southern German States Foster Separatist Movement

BOLSHEVISM IS FEARED

Bavaria and Rhine Provinces Not Likely to Join Federation With Spartacans

By WALTER DURANTY Special Cable to Evening Public Ledger

Copyright, 1919, by the N. Y. Times Co. Paris, Jan. 13 .- French soldiers just back from the occupied sone in Germany say that a separatist movement is steadboth banks of the Rhine. An officer belonging to the information department

"The way the situation is developing now looks as if the outcome might ultimately be a federation of south and west German States, probably including Austria. At the beginning the Government would doubtless be a moderate Socialist republic, but the strong Catholic the bourgeoise and what the British call the upper middle classes.

"Already the spread of Bolshevism in Prussia has filled southern and western Germany with alarm, and unless the Berlin Government can thoroughly crush the Spartacans I doubt greatly whether either Bayaria or the Rhine provinces would agree to form a part of any federation containing such a dangerous element,

"Conditions are not dissimilar in Germany containing such a first provinces with the same of the Russian Bolsheviki. But if Allied and to Poland is anything but mere words the reconstituted Polish State ought to prove an effective buffer."
